August 2019 Newsletter

1. Funding the Centre's Operations

The Band Council of the Stswecem'c/Xgat'tem First Nation – better known to many of our readers as the Canoe Creek Indian Band – has already approved our request for funding, and the matter is under active consideration by the Band Council of the Esk'etemc First Nation which will make its decision on September 24th. Canim Lake's Band Council planned to make its decision on September 3rd, but was prevented from giving consideration to our request by special circumstances in the community, and will deal with the request at its next meeting on October 1st. The Williams Lake Indian Band Council will deal with the request at its September 9th meeting, assisted by Marg Shelley who recently left her position as the long-time Band Administrator in order to assume the position of Executive Director at the Northern Shuswap Tribal Council. The Band's loss is certainly the Tribal Council's gain, and we all wish Marg every success in her new position.

2. Funding Construction of the Centre

As we have pointed out in several previous issues, the start of our fundraising campaign is dependent upon the affirmative decisions of our member Band Councils without whose commitments we will not be able to proceed. In the hope of receiving those Band Council approvals by the end of September, we continue to plan for a campaign strategy meeting in October at which Secwepemc member Carlie Chase will attend to provide us with advice and to consider acting as our consultant moving forward. It will be useful to reintroduce Carlie to you by adopting the contents of her biographical information.

Carlie is the Principal of Nawaska Consulting, and is Secwepemc First Nation from the Skeetchestn Band centred in Savona, BC. Carlie is an accomplished executive in the non-profit sector with over 15 years of experience. She is the former Executive Director of the Legacy of Hope Foundation, a national charity that educates all Canadians about the legacy of residential schools and leads inspired action to promote hope and healing across Canada. The first of her family not to attend residential schools, Carlie is dedicated to being part of a new cultural narrative in Canada.

In 2014, Carlie created a small consulting firm specializing in Indigenous community development. She brings her extensive experience within charitable organizations to all the Indigenous-based projects she leads. This experience includes strategic planning, management, human resources, training, facilitation and community mobilization. Note that fundraising is not one of the areas in which Carlie currently acts, but she will consider acting in an advisory capacity to our future efforts.

As Director of Partnerships for Reconciliation Canada, Carlie led the strategic development of partnerships within the government and corporate sector to further the vision and fundraising goals of that charity. Of particular interest to us was Carlie's leadership and execution of the $15 million fundraising campaign at the Wabano Centre for Aboriginal Health in Ottawa, enabling the construction of the Centre's new building that has been referred to as a "jewel" by the media, and is a cultural touch point for thousands of urban Aboriginal people.

Carlie holds a Bachelors of Arts degree in Psychology from the University of British Columbia and is a Certified Human Resources Professional (CHRP).

Hopefully in next month’s issue we will be able to report both the successful outcome of our funding request to our member Bands, and Carlie’s agreement to a specific date to travel to Williams Lake to meet with us.

3. The Sources of our Project’s Funding to Date

Listed in the date order of their grants and donations are the numerous organizations – both private and public – that have contributed to our efforts since our project started to take shape in 2005. Every single one of them has been crucial to that progress, and regardless of the relative sizes of those donations, we are immensely indebted to each and every one of them.

2005	Cariboo Regional District	$1,600	topographic survey
2005 - 2007	Northern Development Initiative Trust and	$36,917	phase 1 of a major feasibility study
	the Union of B.C. Municipalities via the Cariboo Regional District	$4,350
2007 - 2009	Department of Canadian Heritage and	$62,687.50	main feasibility study
	Western Economic Diversification Canada	$149,800
2008	Department of Canadian Heritage’s Museums Assistance Program	$35,000	start of an effort to identify artifacts and stories reposing with the Bands and their individual members
2008	Community Futures Development Corporation	$50,000	$10,000 to each of our five Bands and which the Bands agreed to contribute to the Society
2012 - 2013	Cariboo Chilcotin Beetle Action Coalition	$25,000	business plan, schematic design by our architects, and an environmental review
